medications that cause drowsiness, euphoria, or short-term memory loss may also diminish a patient's ability to detect impairment changes.